ASK YOUR CONGRESSMAN

By BURT L. TALCOTT
12th District Congressman

Over the past number of years our national priorities have been reordered to meet the requirements of changing times.

Commendably, one of these changes saw America's attention refocused on our precious natural resources and the vital need to preserve and protect the environment which has been despoiled in some parts of the United States. In a short period of time many areas of this nation have been reclaimed and others preserved from desecration.

Unfortunately, we have yet to accord equal attention to possibly our greatest, most scenic and important resource—the oceans and the delicate life cycle these bodies support. The great blanket of water which sustains life in the seas has, ironically, apparently "hidden" the requirements for environmental preservation on this front and too few have realized that degradation of the oceans and inhabitants is occurring at alarming rates and must not be tolerated.

Environmentalists realize that the entire life cycle is only "as strong as its weakest link" and this cycle can be destroyed if just one link is broken. Today, we are in the gravest danger of having the life cycle ruptured.

Off of our coasts foreign fishing fleets are literally "vacuuming" millions of tons of fish from the seas and, thus, drastically, tragically, upsetting the balance of nature. We cannot act too soon to put a halt to this irresponsible disregard for conservation which could destroy whole species of fish and, quite possibly make "dead seas" of our oceans.

The Commerce Committee in the Senate has recently approved legislation which would extend the territorial limits of the United States up to 200 miles off of our coastline. I believe it is imperative that the House of Representatives move expeditiously to enact similar legislation.

The imposition of a 200-mile limit will permit this nation to protect its offshore areas from the ravaging of foreign fleets manned by men who evidently have not been schooled in the basics of conservation. Unless we take such action very soon—the "links" in the life cycle will continue to be weakened and should they ever be broken no amount of rhetoric, hand-wringing or belated legislation will be capable of mending this cycle back together.

One species of fish has already suffered depletion at the hands of marauding foreign fleets. Anadromous fish—fish born in fresh water that migrate to salt water and then return to fresh water to spawn—have been scooped up in huge quantities by foreign fishermen in the open seas before these fish could return to America's inland waters to spawn.

I have repeatedly called the attention of the House to this startling development and I am very pleased that the federal program for the conservation of anadromous fish has recently passed the Congress.

This is a step in the right direction, but again let me reiterate strongly that these stopgap measures cannot and should not be counted on to protect our oceans and resources. The Congress must view the whole picture and act responsibly before it is too late to act and I intend to pursue this matter diligently having introduced legislation to establish a contiguous fishery zone (200 mile limit) which will redress this problem.

Traffic fatalities dropped an estimated 23.7 per cent nationally during the first four months of 1974, compared to the corresponding last year, continuing a trend which began last November as a result of the gasoline shortage.

The total reduction in traffic fatalities, nationwide, since last November now stands at an estimated 4,775.

In Monterey County, in the last six months there has been a 63 per cent reduction in traffic fatalities and a 33 per cent drop in the number of persons injured.

The number of people killed on the nation's roads was down in April for the sixth consecutive month compared to a year ago. Preliminary figures released by the Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration showed that total traffic fatalities for the 50 states in April were 1,004 below the same month last year, a reduction of 22.6 per cent. A total of 3,444 persons were killed in April compared to 4,448 traffic deaths for the corresponding period a year ago.

The reduction in fatalities is attributed to reduced speed limits more than to reduced driving. National Safety Council figures for January and February indicate an average reduction of 17.5 per cent in turnpike miles traveled, but a 55 per cent average reduction in turnpike fatalities. This would tend to emphasize the importance of reduced speed as the major safety factor.

Estimated Traffic Fatalities and Changes
	1974	1973	Percent Change
January	2,928	3,781	-22.6
February	2,566	3,458	-23.2
March	3,191	4,343	-26.5
April	3,444	4,448	-22.6

Fuel savings can also be attributed to both reduced vehicle miles driven, and the inherent savings of lowered speed limits. Information provided by the Federal Highway Administration, based on random speed checks conducted by 10 states, shows that while the 55 m.p.h. speed limit may not be strictly observed everywhere, actual average travel speeds are ranging between 55 and 60 m.p.h. Based upon data now available, this would result in a total national gasoline savings of approximately 5 million gallons per day, or 600 million gallons in the first four months of 1974.

These figures are based upon a composite car average, and upon rural and interstate driving. Urban areas, with their already less than 55 m.p.h. speed limits, were not considered in the data. Using the same composite car as a basis, automobiles get about 21 per cent better gas mileage at 55 m.p.h. than they do at 70 m.p.h.

Effect of Speed Limits Fuel Consumption

Derived from data in DOTs "Analysis of Fuel Saving Through Reduced Speed Limits" dated December 1973.)

Speed Limit MPH	Annual Fuel Savings (in millions of gallons)
	Cars	All Vehicles
60	886	1220
55	1896	3051
50	2991	5491
45	4003	7916

Federal Energy Office Administrator John C. Sawhill has recently sent a telegram to the Nation's governors urging continued enforcement of the 55 m.p.h. speed limit.

Sawhill told the governors that "speed limits of 55 miles an hour can save hundreds of thousands of barrels of oil per day, not to mention the reduction numbered in thousands of Americans injured and killed by accidents on our highways. I urge you to maintain enforcement of the nationwide 55 mile-an-hour highway speed limit, and to continue moving forward with other energy conservation measures."

The Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library wish to thank you for the outstanding publicity the Carmel Valley Outlook gave to our recent Book Sale at the Carmel Plaza.

Since we netted a little over $1200 we feel that the Sale was quite successful, and we appreciate the cooperation of our many good friends and volunteers who helped to make it so. The Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library are already planning for the 1975 Book Sale. We would like to ask our readers to start NOW collecting books, paintings, prints, records, sheet music—any food for mind or spirit. Items may be brought to the Library all year long, or call the Library, 624-4629 for pickup. This is a particularly good way to dispose of books, etc. for anyone who is moving, or settling an estate. Thank you again for your part in our successful Book Sale.

Protection needed for Carmel Bay

(Editorial)

TO SOME, the quibbling over what sort of designation should be given to Carmel Bay in the effort by the state to preserve this unique environmental habitat may appear as ecological hair-splitting.

At a public hearing last week, three possible designations for the 1,530-acre area from Pescadero Point in the north to Granite Point in the south were discussed. These included the classification of the area as a park, a reserve, or an ecological reserve.

The State Lands Commission, which is the "lead agency" in the matter, will make the designation of the area, and the State Department of Parks and Recreation and the State Department of Fish and Game will have jurisdiction over the area.

Although an environmental impact report on possible uses of the proposed park area is now in preparation and may be ready when the State Lands Commission makes its decision in October or November, it is evident that the different designations of the area would allow differing intensities of use.

If the area is designated a state park, "improvements" such as parking lots, toilet facilities and changing rooms may be made so long as they involve "no major modification of lands, forests or waters."

Agreater degree of protection for the environment and marine habitat would be provided by the designation as a reserve, since various plant and animal species would be protected and only scientific research would justify any "habitat manipulation."

IN THE CASE of an ecological reserve, such as the classification applied to the Point Lobos State Reserve and its surrounding waters, the entire area would be virtually assured a hands-off protection.

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club believes, with justification, that designation of the area as an underwater park, which would permit scuba diving, spear fishing, docks, glass-bottom boats, and other park uses, would subject the area to over-use and deterioration through a huge influx of tourists and vehicles.

Agreeing with the Sierra Club were members of the Carmel Highlands Association, Inc., representing property owners in the Highlands. The Carmel Sanitary District, concerned that it would have to phase out its sewage disposal into Carmel Bay if the area is designated as a park, has asked for assurances that the state would allow it to continue this practice. The alternative, which the district is investigating now, would be to dispose of treated effluent on the eastern portion of the Odello property.

It would seem that the best designation for this area, in terms of preserving its unique character for the enjoyment of all, into future generations, would be that of ecological reserve. As in the case of Point Lobos, which is visited and enjoyed by many each year, this kind of protection would afford a continued bulwark against exploitation of the marine environment in the name of "sport." It would, at the same time, allow for recreational, educational, and inspirational use of the land and sea.

We urge the State Lands Commission to give the proposed Carmel Bay underwater park plan the deep-six treatment and to designate the area as an ecological reserve.

Middle East airlines pilot flies 'home' to Carmel Valley

By BETTY BARRON

"It's the nearest thing to Lebanon of any place we have seen," Hafez Haider was speaking of our own beautiful Carmel Valley. And having flown over...and into...almost every country of the world, he speaks with some authority of the site of the new home he and Paula are making here with their five handsome children.

The Haider family came here last October from Beirut, which has been their headquarters and jumping-off place for travel everywhere. Now, they are going to stay in one spot, for the most part, until all the children have graduated from high school. That is, Paula will be here and Hafez will fly over at every opportunity. He has crossed the Atlantic 43 times. Paula and the children have flown it 30 times.

Hafez has been a pilot for Middle East Airlines for almost 20 years, flying principally in Africa, India, Pakistan, Europe and Mid-East countries.

He is proud to fly the planes with the MEA insignia, the Cedars of Lebanon tree, which is a dramatic emblem on the tail of all Middle East Airlines planes. One of his favorite stories concerns a small boy who was boarding Hafez's plane in London for a flight to Beirut at Christmastime. The child stood at the bottom of the steps and surveyed the plane with a happy smile, then turned to his father. "Daddy, isn't it nice they have a Christmas tree on the plane!"

Hafez now flies American-made Boeing 707's and is looking forward to 1975, when Middle East Airlines will commence operating 747's to the United States. Since his pilot training at Ft. Worth, Texas at the American Flyers School which accepts foreign students, he feels that the United States is almost as much a part of his background as his native Lebanon. His English is flawless, as is that of his children. Paula was born in Oklahoma, but has lived in many parts of the world, and speaks Arabic fluently. Actually, all the Haider children speak and write many Arabic dialects, since in Beirut on almost every street, the people speak a different dialect, and in order to converse it is necessary to learn as many as possible.

Vicki Haider, who is 23, has an endless array of interests, among them travel, tennis and modeling, but claims gourmet cooking as a first. She comes by this naturally, as Hafez has a list of Lebanese dishes he concocts for guests without the least bit of urging. I am invited to an authentic Lebanese dinner at the Haider's the next time they are all together, which of course, will be Hafez's next vacation. (He left early this week for Beirut.) Until then, I was treated to a piping hot demitasse cup of Lebanese coffee.

Hafez was quick to inform me, as I sipped the strong and slightly sweet coffee, that Middle East Airlines' food and service is the best in the world...champagne and caviar are always served...the entrees are carefully selected lamb, beef and fish, artfully seasoned and presented by charming hostesses who come from many countries. The hostesses, as well as the pilots, all speak at least three languages...English, French and Arabic...and most of the airline's crew speak five or more languages.

One of the attractions of flying for Middle East, according to Hafez, is the reward of being based in Beirut, or if not lucky enough for that assignment, at least being able to fly in and out frequently. In Beirut it is possible to water ski the blue Mediterranean in the morning and, in an hour and fifteen minutes, ski the snowy slopes of an 11,000 foot mountain. You can have your choice among Sheiks Mountain, Mt. Sannim or Cedars of Lebanon.

American Symphony orchestras frequently come to famed Baalbeck, and the theater at Byblos is well-known for excellent productions. The grotto of a hundred wonders at Jeita attracts world travelers, as well as The Crusaders Castle at Sidon. Of course, from Beirut it is easy to touch down in any of the Roman and Byzantine historical centers, as well as the Greek Islands.

But back to Carmel Valley and the Haider's new life in Robles del Rio.

Milton, 17, is a student at Carmel High School, and is involved in anything and everything to do with sports. This past year he won the award for most-improved player in volleyball.

Subrina, 15, also at Carmel High, lists skating, swimming and belly dancing as her favorites. She and Paula are designing a belly dancing costume, and since Paula is a cosmetologist, appropriate make-up will most certainly complement the costume.

Ten-year old Soraya is immersed in swimming and is a member of the Barracuda Swim Team. A student at Tularcitos, she has entered into the life in Carmel Valley with zest and has developed an interest in horseback riding, naturally.

In addition to his absorption in gourmet cooking, Hafez, surprisingly admitted that after flying, which naturally is his first love, gardening is next. (There's a pun there...that has to do with going "grounded"...that I can't overlook.) In Beirut, the Haider's have a farm some distance from their home in the heart of the city, and when the children were small and their father was preapring to leave to tend the farm, they would all chorus..."Where are you going?" And he would answer, "I'm going to California!" It was a joke then, but now it is a reality.

Hafez has begun his garden in Robles del Rio. He has carefully turned over a 35-foot plot and will grow there much of the produce he requires for his Lebanese dishes. Also, there will be roses, which remind them all of Lebanon.

Carmel Valley is like Lebanon. And the Haider's will add an extra dash of spice from the Middle East to our Valley via Hafez and Middle East Airlines.

Editorial

The County Planning Commission jolted the Carmel Valley countryside with its unanimous vote week to retain the four-lane planlines for Carmel Valley Road as far as Farm Center.

It could be that the County Board of Supervisors will ignore the Planning Commission's recommendations as it did on proposed planlines for widening upper Carmel Valley Road.

It's true that there's a certain unfairness in having planlines for part of the road and not for it all.

But the down-to-earth Plan-Com. and County Road Dept. persist in exposing some annoying facts. A growing Valley generates more traffic. They won't all be retired people who have to take their time, but younger folks screeching up the pavement.

Ergo, slow them down.

This might be done by passing a 35-mile per hour ordinance and tripling the lone Highway patrolman now covering the Valley part time.

Or as the Planners suggest, by tripling the price of homesites by upping minimum zoning from one acre to four or five acrea each. This could preserve the Valley for retired millionaires. Inevitably, the thought is beginning to raise wails from land owner-developers.

In a noble effort to come up with a solution, Jack Uzzell and his group, who successfully opposed four-lane planlines in the Upper Valley, favor immediate development of a Canada De La Segunda Road. This would be a short-cut to Seaside (and Monterey) of only 3.8 miles from Wolter's Fruit Stand to the Salinas-Monterey Highway. The fine hope is that this new road would siphon off traffic, to reduce pressure for widening Carmel Valley Road.

To this, the County Road Dept. sourly comments: "Improve a road and you generate traffic." The County Road Dept. official who said please skip my name-and he added: "Simple statistics prove every time that a new or an improved road attracts nor just sightseers, but local people taking advantage of a new route for various reasons of their own. Result will be more, not less traffic for the Valley."

The same official commented that an expensive Skyline road would be scenic and a bonanza to land owners. More significantly, he added: "It's too far from the Valley floor to relieve local traffic, which is most of the traffic there now."

Is there an answer? Can the coming traffic crush on Carmel Valley Road in years to come be handled without an ugly four-lane highway?

Probably not unless some real concerted community statesmanship is forthcoming to figure out and push for alternate, which will be both beautiful and functional. The Valley Master Plan has a nice-looking line for another parallel Valley Road across Carmel Valley River. But, we suppose this, too, would trample on too many toes to be workable.

So maybe just road-blocking fate for as long as possible is the answer.

County Fair seeking 'amateur' talent for numerous shows

As a showman of area achievement the Monterey County Fair and National Horse Show not only seeks fine oil paintings and homefed livestock, but that very particular area of self-accomplishment which is presented at the fair's numerous talent shows.

In keeping with this year's international theme, "Around The World in Five Fair Days," the August 25-29 event will be welcoming everything in amateur talent from hula dancers to Spanish guitarists.

According to Entertainment Chairman Frank Adams the outdoor stage again will be presenting shows running throughout each fair day.

Reception for principal

Via a series of receptions planned by Tularcitos Parents Club president and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cisneros, parents of Tularcitos students are taking advantage of the opportunity to meet informally with the school's new principal, Phil Smith.

A dinner party Monday evening preceded a reception for residents of Robles Del Rio at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Dale Buche. The Buche children helped to serve the guests who included Phil Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cisneros, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Franke.

The new administrator briefly outlined the goals for the year to the guests who joined them later and discussed the information packets to be distributed to Tularcitos parents containing the school handbooks, program, staffing-infact just about "everything you have ever wanted to know about Tularcitos Elementary...!"

Representatives of Robles residents included; Mr. and Mrs. Herb Reuter, Dr. and Mrs. Ed Arana, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gould, Mrs. Jim Ijams, Mrs. Delores Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. John Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Tally, Mrs. Sally Fredricks, Mr. and Mrs. William Boone, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lichenegger, and Mrs. Rien Bochel. Also present were two members of the Carmel Unified District School Board, Fran Gaver, and Pam Smith.

Happy Birthday, Esther

A large "number-eight" candle-each number signifying a decade of the celebrant's milestones-topped the birthday cake at the surprise party given last week for Miss Esther Trevino.

Accepting an invitation to accompany her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. S.N. Trevino, on a ride, she found her destination their El Portrero Road home where guests awaited to wish her a happy eightieth birthday.

Among guests invited to share traditional cake and ice cream were; Mrs. Stella Miller, Mrs. Dorothy Griffith, Mrs. Ruth Titus, Mrs. Don Johnson, Mrs. Clifford Bolgard, Mrs. Robert Arnal, Mrs. Raymond Danielson, Mrs. John Broberg, Mrs. Joseph Stekly, Mrs. Edward Chappell, Mrs. Thomas McKiernon, Mrs. Joseph Baudouin, Mrs. Paul Edwards, Mrs. Emil Hansen and Mrs. W.E. Sumner.

Gold in the Sierras

Two "lucky pockets" of gold found in the Oregon Creek during a camping expedition helped Rosemary and Stan Roberts balance their misadventures during a rainstorm in the high Sierras, when six inches of rain fell in sixteen hours. With the temperatures in a brisk 30 degrees the Valley couple resorted to crank case oil on wet wood with which to dry out their supplies.

The miners returned just in time to welcome a reunion-their first in eighteen years-with Stan's brother and wife, Hazel and Lindreth Roberts who have been house guests on West Carmel Valley Road from their home in South Hamilton, Mass.

Shower for Melanie and Gary

Parents to be-Mr. and Mrs. Gary Klemek-were honored guests at a Stork shower given by Marge and Sam Klemek in happy anticipation of their first grandchild.

Held poolside at the Klemek home on Holman Road, guests drew names for partners in a rousing "Table Tennis Tournament" refereed by Sal O'Campo. First place winners, Linda Klemek and Tom O'Campo were awarded bottles of champagne.

Gifts were opened following the buffet dinner. In addition to the many useful and beautiful gifts, Gary received an "Expectant Father's Kit" containing: one pair of ear plugs, one pint of bourbon, and a copy of the best seller, "Once is not Enough." A mysterious gift wrapped in a sheet, brought by Darby and Stan Worth kept everybody guessing and turned out to be what every baby needs...a tricycle!

In addition to Melanie's mother, Mrs. Loretta Klein, those enjoying the Couples Shower were; Kay Simpson, Gret DeSmidt, Doris Gerdes, Eloise Wiseman, Liz Hagn, Miss Cheryl Oberbeck, Jerry Coleman, Mrs. James McCabe and daughters, Beth and Sue, Mr. Sal O'Campo, Cindy and Tom, Mr. and Mrs. Claire Musgterd, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Worth, Mr. and Mrs. John Manachek, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Olsen, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Poulos, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sherman.

Housewarming on Rancho

A player piano, a stereo, and a well stocked refrigerator filled with libations and hors d'oeuvres were the only furnishings to be found at the "Empty House Party" held last week-end at the new home of Mrs. Francie Casarez on Rancho Road.

Among those attending the housewarming were; April and Jerry Tweddell (who have purchased Francie's home on Lower Circle); Diane and Mike Newton (who are the new owners of her home in Robles Del Rio); Pam & Michael Viljoen, Barbara and Harold Waymire, Veronica and Ray Lindsey, Ethlyn and Fran Hughes, Josie and Dean Deas, Mitou and Charlie Rose. Also Shirley Ijams, Laura Wolfe, Sally Fredricks, Sandy McNeal, Maria Gonzales, Brent MacCinnon, Steve Brown, Jim Zoellin, Loren Wilder, Kit Parker, Danny Tavares, and Pete Jackson.

'Music man' given life-like portrayal at Studio Theatre

By ROBERT MISKIMON

Like baseball, hamburgers and the work ethic, "The Music Man" seems to have become deeply rooted in the American consciousness. How much a part of the archetypal musical stage this work has become is evident in the fine and well-appreciated production now being staged at Carmel's Studio Theatre Restaurant. Once again, the Studio Theatre has brought to the stage a well directed musical, complete with entertaining sets and good choreography. Despite a few rough spots occasioned by the fact the cast has a range of characters from pre-teen to over-50, "The Music Man" makes a credible showing for itself.

Such classics as "The Sadder But Wiser Girl," "Marian, the Librarian," "It's You," "Gary, Indiana," and "Seventy Six Trombones" get a good reading in the performance.

"The Music Man" opened with a try-out performance in Philadelphia in 1957, then moved to New York, where it enjoyed a run of 1,376 performances, lasting until 1961. If that isn't a testament to the durability of the musical, its warm reception among audiences of today certainly can leave little doubt.

Part con man and part music man, Harold Hill, played by director Bill Asp, whisks into River City, Iowa on a trainload of traveling salesmen and sets about selling music as a cure for a juvenile delinquency problem. He also sells musical instruments and instruction as part of the deal, and the town falls for it hook, line and sinker.

There is romantic entanglement with Marian Paroo, the librarian, played by Raylene Ewing (who, incidentally, possesses one of the best singing voices heard on the Studio Theatre stage in months) when Harold Hill tries to sell her the idea of a young people's band.

The musical instruments are ordered and arrangements are made to stage a gymnasium musical performance, none too soon to save Harold Hill's hide, since the town fathers become skeptical of his sales pitch.

There is a musical and romantic denouement in the gymnasium when the young people, attired in traditional band uniforms, march onto stage, playing with "Professor" Hill's much-touted "think system" which magically enables children to become musicians without learning a note of music.

One of the notable stage effects occurs in the first scene, when the traveling salesmen are seen inside the train as it approaches River City. The deft use of a strobe light, timed to flicker rhythmically to a stream-of-consciousness, tobacco auctioneer-type recital off-stage about music and its relation to the early, small-town American experience, is impressive.

And Lee Brady, as the daffy mother of Marian the librarian, gives an energetic and convincing performance reflecting her prior stage experience at the Forest Theater, among other places.

There are entertaining cameo roles by children throughout. These include Heather Ferrill, Arlene Ferrill, Keith Bayless, Martin Bozlee, Crissa Bozlee, Regina Johnson, and Maia Anderson.

Once again, excellent musical direction and piano accompaniment is given by Tom Fordham, with choreography by Suzy Polk, settings by William F. Stone, Jr., Raylene Ewing as choral director and Angela Cotton as stage manager.

Former Mayor Barney

Laiolo appears as one of the traveling salesmen and as one of the barbershop quartet singing towns people. The mayor of River City is played by Al Brooking.

Others in the cast include Bill Bumar, Earl Bozlee, Mike Bogliolo, David Drakos, Kay Carlson, Marilyn Berry, Cherie Bozlee, Vicki Heisinger, Alex Lopukhin, Regina Johnson, Julie Zimmerman and Don Meharry.

Fund - raising group for SPCA started

A new fund-raising organization has recently come into existence. The SPCA Auxiliary was started about three months ago by June Foster Hass of Carmel Highlands when it became apparent that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals needed a financial support group.

The SPCA in Monterey County, located on the Monterey-Salinas Highway, needs $12,750 a month or $153,000 a year to operate.

Gwendolyn R. May, executive director of the local SPCA, comments: "The SPCA, like all charitable organization, is having a particularly difficult time during the present financial crisis. The price of food for all animals has risen, and because of this we are getting many more animals, especially larger animals like horses, than we used to."

"We have been going in the red every month for the past six months and that can only go on so long. I hope the community comes to our aid before we have to take any drastic action. We take care of half of the animals in the county, and so provide a great community service."

The Monterey County SPCA is a humane society, with the purpose, according to Mrs. May of preventing suffering. The means providing shelter and food for lost domestic animals or wounded wild animals, maintaining an adoption service, and in many cases, taking the life of animals who cannot be cared for. It is open 24 hours a day and is staffed by 80 volunteers.

The SPCA Auxiliary has been formed to provide financial support for these services. As a sampling of the costs required to keep the SPCA shelter operating, the organization has released the following figures (April, 1974 estimates): $420 to pay expenses to run the Shelter for one day; $333 to pay for food for farm stock at the Educational Center barn for one month; $50 for the spay operation for an average sized dog; $25 to pay for food for the deer herd for two weeks.

Other costs are: $4.15 for one case of cat food; $7 for 50 pounds of dog meal; $6 for one case of dog food; and $77 for the operation of the ambulances (of which there are three) for one day. At present there is a crisis in supplying enough hay--$2,300 is needed.

A total of $3,000 is also needed for asphalt to build outdoor feeders for the animals which roam the SPCA grounds. In addition, the SPCA needs to buy another ambulance to replace one that will soon be out of service.

In the past, the SPCA has raised money through such activities as the Oct. 4 Feast of St. Francis at which time tables are set up throughout the community to collect donations. This activity will continue, but the SPCA Auxiliary hopes to supplement it with other fund-raising events.

Thus far only one event, a Christmas party to held at the Carmel Art Association, has been planned, but Mrs. Hass says others are being considered. Membership in the Auxiliary is broken down to: Annual, $5; Sponsor, $10; Patron, $25; and Life, $50.

On the board of directors for the newly formed SPCA Auxiliary are: June Foster Hass, president; Sean Flavin, vice-president; Mrs. Will Shaw, treasurer; Mrs. John Roland, secretary; Mrs. Rodrick Dewar, Arthur Porter, Lise Work, and Nancy Borland.

June Hass, the owner of four pets, hopes the community will take an active interest in the animals which become lost in our area, and support the newly created SPCA Auxiliary.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable water of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U.S. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

A weekly sports column in the Outlook? Impossible, I said, when the assignment was offered me! After all, what sports are there in Carmel Valley and Carmel? Little League Baseball, Barracuda Swim Team, Senior League Baseball, Carmel High Sports, golf, tennis, Carmel Middle School sports,—merely enough for one or two articles a year, right? Wrong!!

This is intended to be a column of interest for Carmel Valley and Carmel residents. The sports which occur on a national level or statewide level will be reported here only in passing. What I would like this column to be is a sports forum for the readers. You tell me what you would like to read—I'll do my best to oblige.

Hopefully, before long this column will be expanded to the Carmel Pine Cone so that we will have a broader base of reader interest, but for now, the readers of the Carmel Valley Outlook will pretty much dictate what goes in here.

SPORT SHORTS

PHYSICAL EXAMS for Carmel High School athletes will be given at 1:30 p.m. August 16 in the High School cafeteria. Continuing and new students, both male and female, who intend to participate in interscholastic sports are urged to attend. A $3 fee will be payable by cash or check at the time of the exam. This will be the only school-administered physical this year, though students may be examined by their own family doctor later instead.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE AND EQUIPMENT ISSUE dates have been announced by Monte Feekes, Carmel High's athletic director. Varsity candidates will be issued equipment at 10 AM August 17 at the Carmel Middle School gym. JV Equipment will be issued at 1:30 PM, also on August 17, at the Middle School gym. A joint practice will be held for the varsity and JV on Monday, August 19. Team candidates must have with them the yellow form which was mailed to them signed by their examining doctor and parents.

FROSH equipment will be issued at the Carmel High cafeteria at 9 AM August 26th. No date for Frosh practice has been set.

For further information, call Mr. Monte Feekes or Mrs. Harnish at the High School, 624-1821.

AUGIE ACUNA and the Carmel Valley Little League Allstars advanced to the Sectional playoffs in San Jose and came close to winning their first game, a feat which has not been accomplished in the Monterey Bay Area for a couple of years. Carmel Valley defeated Watsonville for the District 39 championship on July 27, then advanced to the sectionals. Augie told me that all Carmel Valley needed was a longer fence—Buzz Fulton got bombed for four homers in the three innings he pitched. At any rate, CV is the holder of the District Title until next July, when they will be defending it against the same four other teams in the Monterey Peninsula Area—Carmel, Marina, Seaside American, and Seaside National.

CARMEL-CARMEL VALLEY SENIOR ALLSTARS performed adequately this year, too, for a change. They beat Marina for the District crown, went on to lose twice in the sectional double elimination tourney in San Jose. For both the C-CV Seniors and the CV Little League Allstars, congratulations on a job well done.

ATTENTION: Sports coaches, athletic directors, parents, and fans. If you want your team's news in the Outlook, call me at 624-3881 or drop a press release (preferably with pictures) to either Box G-1, Carmel 93921 or Box CC, Carmel Valley 93924. Mark it to my attention. I for one hope that a weekly sports column will help to highlight what is going on in the Valley with l-o-c-a-l sports. As you can tell, my accent is on youth, but all sports will be reported.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Art Black is the Monterey Peninsula Area Administrator for Little League Baseball as well as the President of the Carmel Little League. In his spare time he is the Business Manager for the Pine Cone and Outlook.

Rising air pollution levels disturb committee

A committee named to study growth problems in Carmel Valley in connection with a "game strategy" approach to limiting development has expressed alarm at rising air pollution levels.

Lois Moser, a member of the committee which is working with Harold Chailand of the Rann Corp. on the approach to finding an optimum area carrying capacity, released figures on violations of federal air standards at the mid-Carmel Valley air monitoring station.

Information from the Monterey-Santa Cruz Counties Joint Air Pollution Control District indicates there were 106 reported violations of federal air pollution standards at the mid-Valley monitoring station in the 12 months between March of 1973 and the beginning of April, 1974.

The federal standard indicates that .08 parts per million (ppm) of pollutants per hour must not be exceeded more than once a year.

The committee is also concerned that development at the mouth of Carmel Valley which has already been approved would add by as much as 25 per cent to the air pollution levels in the local airshed.

Quoting from the environmental impact report on the proposed Rio Road Motel prepared by the Monterey County Planning Department, Mrs. Moser said the Rio Road Motel would add 2 to 3 per cent, the Meharry development 3 to 4.5 per cent, two theaters and a bank 3 to 4 per cent, a proposed office complex 4 to 5 per cent, and the proposed Carmel del Pacifico development 6 to 9 per cent.

Edward Munson, air pollution control officer with the local district, pointed out in a letter to the committee that motor vehicles account for more than 95 per cent of the carbon monoxide and 85 per cent of the oxides of nitrogen and hydrocarbons in air pollution. These oxides are the principal components of smog.

"New real estate development, including those already approved and those presently proposed for Carmel Valley would add 2,513 new units--1,623 residential and 890 transient," Mrs. Moser said.

"It is estimated that these 2,513 new units would add 5,464 additional people to the population of the valley. Assuming two cars per residential unit and one car per transient unit, this would mean adding 3,869 additional cars to the estimated 6,500 now in the Valley--an increase of 60 per cent.

"No one new development can be named as 'the culprit' which would bring on bad air pollution, but it does point up the incremental effect of all the new developments added together."

It is this "incremental effect" of air pollution in relation to new developments at the mouth of the Valley which was also mentioned in the environmental impact report on the Rio Road Motel:

"This incremental effect of pollution in the environment is a very serious and real threat and should be considered by decision-makers as they approve each major project."

School screening program gets underway

The week of Aug. 19 through 23 is developmental screening week for all entering kindergarten pupils in the Carmel Unified School District.

Rich Hawkins, director of pupil personnel services and coordinator of the program, said developmental screening is a process of observing a child's general development and constructing an initial learning profile. The process recognizes the importance of the early childhood years and attempts to utilize what has been learned in recent years about child development and early learning experiences.

Each child is asked to do a number of game-like tasks while a trained observer notes one of three levels of development. The child may be able to do a task relatively easily and thus not need instruction in this area. Or the child may be able to do a task a little bit but still need more practice before becoming proficient. Finally, a task may be too difficult for a child indicating a possible area to begin instruction.

The areas covered by the screening include large muscle coordination, eye-hand coordination, visual perception, visual memory, auditory perception, auditory memory, receiving language, expressing language and speech.

The screening staff includes the kindergarten teacher, the school principal, the district psychologist, speech therapists and learning assistance teachers.

The learning profile is like a picture or an X-ray of a child's sensory and cognitive development. It is used by the kindergarten teacher to plan an individualized program by recognizing the different developmental levels attained by different children. The screening process also gives preliminary clues about exceptional children--those who may need extra assistance in basic skills and those who may need accelerated learning experiences.

The screening period is also a time to begin teamwork and communication between parents and school personnel. The parents have a role in the screening process. They are given information about the developmental tasks and the specific observations about their child. Parents are asked to provide information about their child's health and developmental history from birth until school entrance. The kindergarten teacher, school principal and district psychologist will be present for discussion and information.

The schedule for screening is as follows:

Woods--Monday, Aug. 19, 8:15 a.m. to noon, in the library

Captain Cooper--Tuesday, Aug. 20, 8:15 a.m. to noon, in the Kindergarten Room

River--Tuesday, Aug. 20, 1

p.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the library

Carmelo--Wednesday, Aug. 21, 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the library

Tularcitos--Thursday and Friday, Aug. 22 and 23, 8:15 a.m. to noon, in ECE Building

All children and parents are urged to attend. Anyone planning to enroll a child in kindergarten this fall in any Carmel School who has not yet enrolled their child or received a letter of appointment for the screening, contact your school or Terri in the central office at 624-1546.

Upper valley site for new research facilities

Five Case Ph.D. graduates and one Ph.D. candidate have formed the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy (MIRA) to conduct astronomical research and related scientific studies in Carmel Valley. They plan to build and operate one of the few major, independent astronomical observatories to be founded in the United States since the turn of the century.

The MIRA observatory will be built on a site leased from the U.S. Forest Service in Los Padres National Forest, with research facilities and faculty homes located in Upper Carmel Valley.

The primary component of the Institute's telescope--a 36" mirror--is on permanent loan to the group from Princeton University's Observatory, and they have received donations of thousands of dollars worth of computer equipment. A college in the area even sent out a class to survey a road to the remote site. The astronomers are now discussing additional funding with a private foundation and say if all goes well the MIRA observatory could become operational by January, 1976.

When completed, it will rank among the top 15 astronomical research centers in the nation and will be a model of automation. A computer will guide the telescope and related measuring instruments to collect data as accurately and efficiently as possible.

Seven members of the Institute (four astronomers, the wives of two of them and a computer specialist) are already at work in California. Cynthia and Nelson Irvine are headquartered at CWRU's Warner and Swasey Observatory in Cleveland while she completes her doctoral degree.

Cynthia said the idea to build an observatory first came up when they were graduate students discussing the tough job market for astronomers.

"In the past, universities and the Federal government have been the largest employers, but there isn't as much money available now for research."

The chance suggestion to build their own observatory turned into concrete plans following a year-long feasibility study which showed the needs and opportunities for a new astronomical research center. The group agreed to stay together for five years, and formed a book distribution company to cover their living expenses.

The site in California was selected for what astronomers call "good seeing." The combination of high land near the sea causes the air to be less turbulent so that stars can be observed clearly. The site is also far from the lights and smog of any major cities and close to the essential library facilities of several other observatories and universities. "We expect to have at least 1,000 hours per year for very accurate observations," added Nelson.

The astronomers plan a five year research project to measure the astrophysical characteristics of the 125,000 brightest stars in a number of different wavelengths. "This data will give us a basic catalogue of what the stars in our galaxy are doing," said Cynthia. "We'll be doing something for astronomy no one else has had the time, staff or instrumentation to complete."

MIRA faculty members also have their own individual research interests, and as Nelson said, "A good deal of astronomy is serendipity. Many important discoveries result from other routine work."

George Shearing to give benefit

The Monterey Peninsula Committee of Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., presents "An Evening with George Shearing," at 8 p.m. Sept. 5 at Sunset Auditorium in Carmel.

Shearing, blind himself since birth, is working this appearance into a busy schedule and donating his talents to this worthy cause.

Chairmen of the event, Mrs. Robert McMahon and Mrs. Robert Stanton, anticipate a complete sellout and urge those interested to make their reservations early. Tickets are $10 (reserved seat), $25 (preferred sponsor seating) and should you wish to make it a really gala night, you may purchase a row of 12 seats to make up a Blue Ribbon Theater Party for only $400 (a portion of all tickets is tax deductible).

Reservations may be made either by calling Sunset Auditorium or writing Guide Dogs for the Blind, P.O. Box 373, Pebble Beach.

Evening registration deadline nears

Students who failed to register for classes in the evening division at Monterey Peninsula College by Wednesday must register on campus in early September.

Keith Merrill, the dean of community education, said more than 2,000 students have registered for 315 evening, twilight, weekend, off-campus and "College by Television" classes. He added that most class sections are still open in a wide variety of study fields.

On-campus registration will be held from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Sept. 4 and 5 in the MPC Gymnasium. Late registration for evening classes will be held through the second class meeting in conjunction with the instructor and the registration desk which is located in the Student Services Building.

Classes start the week of Sept. 10.

New this year is a reduction in student registration fees. The $13 adult fee which had been charged for several years has been eliminated. Students registering for evening classes scheduled at the college campus will be charged a $5 building fee.

Students taking classes at one of the many community locations pay no fees for evening classes.

Non-California residents will be charged a tuition fee of $28 per unit of credit to a maximum of $420. This fee is in addition to the $5 building fee.

The classes being offered this fall in the evening include courses from all of the fields in the liberal arts and sciences and the technical-vocational fields which are offered in the regular day program.

Classes being offered for the first time in the evening division include Consumer Issues and Buying Problems, Calligraphy, The Consumer and the Automobile, Comedy and the Movies, Arabic, Gentrain, a series of short humanities courses, Exploring Self: A Core Course for Women, Coastal and Celestial Navigation, Roles in the Nuclear Family, The Disenfranchised in America and Japan as a Culture.

"College By Television" will be back on the air in September with two classes for daily living. An updated version of "Law for the 70's" is again being offered in the fall following a successful presentation last spring, and "The Consumer Experience" a consumer behavior course on the strategies used by marketers in shaping their appeals to consumer preferences, is being offered for the first time. Both programs will originate from Bay Area television stations and be carried by local cables. KSBW-TV of Salinas will carry the consumer program locally on Sunday mornings.

The evening program has grown by 65 courses since last spring and much of this growth, said Merrill, has been in the MPC Weekend College on Friday nights and Saturday mornings which will offer 46 classes and the MPC Off-Campus program which has tripled since last spring to offer 38 courses in the communities of Monterey, Seaside, Pacific Grove, Carmel, Carmel Valley, Marina and Big Sur.

For more information on registration and other college programs, call the MPC registration desk at 649-1150.

FEEDBAG

By LUCY SMITHSON

We were reminded by watching the Monterey County Horse Show of how many different things a horse can be trained to do. And of all those disciplines we give highest points—in terms of Difficult, Requiring The Most Training, Most Sensitive To Mistakes,—to Stock Horse class.

There aren't any Sunday Cowboys in Stock Horse class. Nor are there all the teen age girls that outnumber the rest of the horsey set.

Those blazing runs, stops and spins separate the sheep from the goats among riders. It takes a very lean seat, perfect balance, pinpoint timing and real guts to execute the reining pattern.

Ring work, or dry-work as it is called, is only the half of it. Stock horses are required to work cattle right there in front of everybody. Of all the classes in the horse show, Stock Horse is the only one that tests the horse on what he's supposed to be good for.

You think stepping over poles actually proves anything about the trail horses in Trail Horse class? Most horse show hunters would have a heart attack if they had to follow fox hounds.

But stock horses are the real thing. When that steer comes out of the chute, you can tell the horse knows what it is. And he knows what the steer is going to do and how fast.

When the stock horse chouses a steer he keeps his shoulder right in there stride for stride. Slow or fast, straight or turn, the cow pony is tuned in on bovine thinking. It is apparent to everyone that the sliding stops, and roll backs of the dry work were not just for pretty.

Jumpers are always bragging how this or that horse used to be a barrel racer or harness horse or what ever and then they found out he could jump. You don't meet rejects like that in Stock Horse. Ain't none of them former gaited horses who were discovered to have cow sense.

Only the best colts are selected for stock horse training. It requires that perfect balance, pinpoint timing, and guts we mentioned earlier. Also it requires the muscle to deliver this. On top of all this, the necessity to think cow narrows the field to the best of the best.

Stock Horse division is one of the few which separates young horses into separate classes not on the basis of age or experience but by the equipment used. Traditionally speaking, young stock horses are worked in hackamores.

Another reason the trainer does not want to battle his hackamore horse is because he doesn't want the horse's head to get skinned up or sore. This is apt to make a horse tough or calloused in areas the trainer wants sensitive. Once a horse gets sore under a bosal he is apt to lose the lightness needed to work smoothly.

Working smoothly also means the bosal must fit the horse. One which is too big or poorly fitted will have too much play in it. The horse may not get the signal promptly. Or he may get too much signal and respond too big when just a little was wanted.

The best hackamores are of soft leather over a rawhide core. Cores of steel cable or nosebands of hard leather are too stiff. They are not sensitive enough for light control.

Hackamores require a different reining technique than bits. The hackamore horse is taught to respond to a direct pull on one rein with a sit-down and turn in that direction.

This "doubling" is taught first at a walk then at a trot, finally at a lope. The idea is to make the horse very supple. Those beautiful stops are the result of long slow training. First the turn over the hocks—often a fence corner or barn wall is used as a turning aid. Then much later while the horse thinks "turn" he's sneaked into stopping.

When a stop is wanted, the pull on one rein sets a horse back on his hind feet. The pull on the other rein prevents the horse from turning, so he stops.

Pulling and hauling on reins won't make a stock horse. Roughhousing a green horse can blow his training out the tubes.

None of the shortcuts available to other horse trainers are of any use, when the steer starts to run.

They go into a bridle after they have already learned most of the working business.

Hackamore stock horse classes are for young horses up to five years old. Once they have demonstrated their ability in a bridle, they are no longer eligible for Hackamore class.

The hackamore used is not the contraption called a hackamore-bit. It's the bosal with the knob under it. When the reins are pulled, the bosal comes into contact with the jawbones. The skin over a horse's jawbones is stretched tight and thin; it is a sensitive area.

The hackamore does not depend on leverage or power for its control. In fact, some care must be taken with the young horse to prevent him from learning that he can run away with it.

First he is thoroughly halter broken and worked from the ground. The horse must be slowly and carefully educated not to fight because in a hackamore he has a fighting chance of winning.
